

'Stand Up And Be Counted'
Monroe County
Industrial Fund
Rises To $13,842

A $10 CHECK from a couple of self-styled "newcomers in the Poconos" was among contributions to the industrial development of Monroe County Industries, Inc., over the weekend.

In enclosing their check, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Nealis said they wished it could be for more and added they are "hoping to see this area grow and grow."

Two other contributions brought the total contributed and pledged to $13,842. The fund's goal is $15,000.

The other checks, for $50 each, came from A. A. Laufer, Dodge-Plymouth dealer, and Truman Burnett of Stroudsburg Granite Co.

Drive

The drive, entering its sixth week, is now within $1,158 of its goal.

The money will be used to purchase a 15-acre plot of ground in which two outside industries have shown an interest.

Funds received for the land, which will be sold to the interested industries, will be placed in a revolving fund for future industrial expansion here.

Clergymen
Campaigning
In England

LONDON, Sept. 22 (P)—A group of rebel clergymen were reported today to be planning a new campaign to have the Church of England recognize the remarriage of divorced persons.

The question became headline news again when a Church of England vicar defied the official view of the bishops and married a divorcee last week.

The bishops, who rule the church and appoint the clergy, have refused to sanction the marriage of anyone who has passed through the divorce courts. But under the constitution of the church, they cannot take action against clergymen who exercise their own discretion and conduct marriage services for divorcees.

Reports

Newspaper reports said a "strong section of the church" will lead an attack on the official attitude to divorce when the ruling convocation meets at historic Canterbury next month. Such a move could split the church in two.

The refusal of the church to recognize remarriage after divorce led to the abdication of King Edward VIII in 1936 and the break-up of Princess Margaret's romance with Peter Townsend two years ago.

Two clergymen have brought the matter to a head again in the last week.

One was the Rev. Lawrence Davies, 43-year-old vicar of the Midlands village of Longdon, who shocked some of his parishioners by marrying Mrs. Margaret Worcester, a school matron who had divorced her first husband on grounds of desertion.

The other was the Rev. William Weir, 70-year-old rector of Korton and Falkenhamb in Suffolk, who defied the church's doctrine and performed a full marriage service for Davies and his bride.

Postmen Receive
Plenty Of Help

WAKAYAMA, Japan, Sept. 22 (P)—Postmen here who refused Friday to deliver mail to homes with unleashed dogs were joined in their battle today by newspaper delivery boys and milkmen.

Wakayama's 2,300 post office workers began putting posters on street corners Friday declaring "no mail will be delivered to homes keeping unleashed dogs."

Haitians Vote
For President

PONT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Sept. 22 (P)—Haitians voted for a new president and congress today in a generally peaceful election held under army protection. Results may be known by Wednesday.

Provisional president Brig. Gen. Antonio Kebreau announced one fatality. A voter attacked a soldier in the southern town of Jacmel and was shot down.

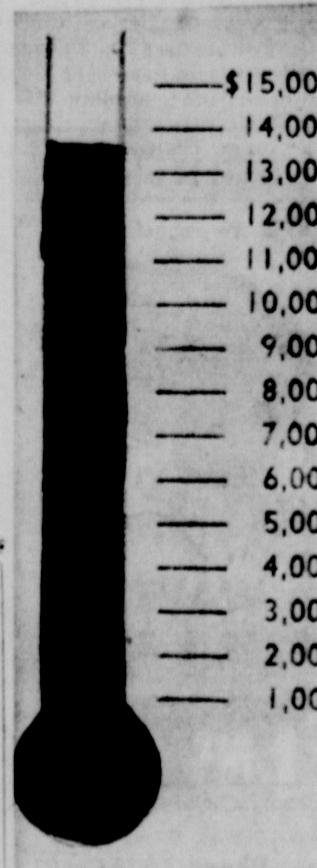

Lifeboats, Raft Spotted

German Ship Missing In Hurricane

LONDON, Sept. 22 (P)—U. S. Air Force planes searching the stormy mid-Atlantic reported tonight they had spotted two life-boats and one raft, but no sign of the battered German bark Pamir or any survivors.

The four-masted sailing ship, carrying a crew of about 90 and a cargo of barley on a voyage from Buenos Aires to Hamburg, was caught yesterday in Hurricane Carrie about 600 miles west of the Azores and radioed that she was sinking.

The lone craft spotted by the American air-men carried the word "Luebeck"—the West German city where the 8,102-ton, fourmasted ship

INCHING UPWARD

Plymouth
Boy Found
By Searchers

PLYMOUTH, Sept. 22 (P)—A 13-year-old boy who was found in an abandoned house near here Saturday afternoon after disappearing from school Friday was reported in good condition tonight.

But the family physician, Dr. Burton Well, declined to disclose the nature of the injury that caused Harry Ravert Jr., of 252 Mountain Rd., Plymouth to be admitted to Nesbitt Hospital in King Alfred next month. Such a move could split the church in two.

He said it is "always possible" he will call out the Guardsmen again in case of violence but added "I hope such an eventuality does not develop."

Faubus told reporters he hopes there will be a "cooling off period" in Little Rock before any attempt is made by the Negroes to enter classes.

"Consistent with our democratic traditions we shall be guided by the wishes of the majority of our members as expressed by the delegates to that convention," Beck said.

The letter, authorized by the General Executive Board Friday, said the AFL-CIO Executive Council would go ahead with the hearing on charges of misconduct against the Teamsters union. Retiring Teamsters President Dave Beck, with unanimous approval of his General Executive Board, yesterday rejected any invitation to appear at the meeting.

Convention

Instead, Beck wrote AFL-CIO President George Meany the entire matter would be presented to the international convention of Teamsters which begins here Sunday.

"Of what are you apprehensive?" a reporter asked.

"I am apprehensive of disorder and violence," the governor replied. "I hope calmness and tolerance will prevail."

In a broader explanation than he has given previously of actions that had national repercussions, Faubus charged that integrationists had planned 30 days in advance to make a national "show-case" of integration in Little Rock.

Field Work On Tax Program To Begin In Monroe County

Equalization Workers To Visit Homes

WORKERS for J. L. Jacobs Co. will begin visiting homes and properties in Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg this week.

The firm is in charge of Monroe County's new tax equalization program. This week's work will be part of the Jacobs' company's "sales analysis" of local properties. It forms the nucleus for a market value table to be established by the firm.

Last week Jacobs employees prepared index forms on recent sales recorded in the County Court House. Comparative studies such as this held up standards of current real values on property to be used as guides.

Cards

All Jacobs Co. workers will arrive at homes they visit in this county with an identification "card". It will contain the following wording on one side:

MONROE COUNTY, PENN-SYLVANIA. This will introduce the bearer (space where name will be typed in) of the appraisal firm of the J. L. Jacobs & Co., whose signature and photograph appear on the reverse side of this card. Said firm has been employed by the Commissioners of Monroe County to meet the requirements as adopted in April, 1952 by the "Committee of Ten" for mapping and appraisal of all real estate and the establishment of a permanent tax record system in and for Monroe County, Penna. Your cooperation in this matter is solicited and will be greatly appreciated."

Each card will bear the signature of both the chief clerk and the chief assessor of Monroe County. The cards will have photographs and signatures of the bearer in all cases.

Liam Kennedy, supervisor of the local project for the Jacobs Co., said this weekend that his workers will attempt to "go into and complete work in the outlying perimeters as much as we can before bad weather sets in."

County Infant Dies Enroute To St. Luke's Hospital

A SIX-HOUR-OLD girl, born Friday morning at Monroe County General Hospital, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Luke's Hospital, Bethlehem, after a police-escorted ambulance sped her there for treatment by a bronchoscope.

State Police from Stroudsburg and Bethlehem barracks furnished the escort for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Miller, East Stroudsburg.

Dr. R. F. Jones of East Stroudsburg, who delivered the child, authorized the trip to St. Luke's when it was believed the infant was suffering from a collapsed lung.

No Heartbeat

Attendants at the Fountain Hill hospital said the infant was taken directly to the hospital nursery upon arrival and doctors were unable to detect a heartbeat or respiration.

Dr. Jones and a nurse accompanied the child in the ambulance and administered oxygen throughout the trip. Stroudsburg state police escorted the ambulance to Wind Gap from where state police of the Bethlehem barracks continued the escort.

The Millers have no other children. Mrs. Miller is the former Joan Elaine Whickham.

Youngster Burned By Albany Gang

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 22 (UPI)—An 11-year-old boy was burned seriously about the face today in what he told police was an attack by a gang of Negro youths who tried to chase him from a park in front of the state capitol.

Police said, however, that there was a possibility some of the story might not be true.

The boy, John Somma, suffered first, second and third-degree burns and shock. Albany Hospital said his eyesight might be impaired.

Lt. William Van Amburgh of the city police told newsmen tonight that police considered it strange they could find no witnesses to the alleged daylight attack, since the area normally is heavily traveled.

Van Amburgh said also police had been unable to establish any motive for the attack. He said the boy would be questioned further.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Michael Somma, said that her son ran home screaming at noon. She said she told her that the older youths had knocked him to the ground and held him there while one poured a liquid on his head and another touched a match to it. Then all ran away.

Others participating in the session were William P. Deering, Harold James, Louis Mandell, Earl Weiss, Kirk Boussell, Rev. Clifford Hayes and Ed. Bosman.

East Stroudsburg High Teacher Believed First To Receive Benefits Of Program

Monroe County resident all of her Monroe County schools for a total of Monroe County schools for a total of 19 years.

Her first six years in the field of education were devoted to country school-houses located at Resica Falls, Fruthleys and Middle Smithfield Township. For the past 13 years she taught at East Stroudsburg High School. Mrs. Cron is the widow of Arthur Cron who lost his life in an automobile accident in 1936.

Opportunity

Earlier this year teachers were given an opportunity to vote on having a referendum for the purpose of integrating with the Social Security program. Those voting in favor of the referendum were to be later given an opportunity to vote yes or no on the proposed integration. Those voting not to have a referendum were automatically excluded from any future coverage under Social Security.

In August, the balloting was held and a majority approved the integration of social security with the teachers retirement system.

Water Gap Man Faces Motor Charge

DELAWARE WATER GAP — A 33-year-old local man will face charges of causing death by automobile, Phillipsburg, N.J., State Police said over the weekend.

He is Robert Lehr, whose car, police said, went through a red traffic light at an intersection on Route 24 at Morris Acres, three miles east of Phillipsburg Thursday.

James H. Katzman, 45, Harrisburg, R.D. 1, died in Warren Hospital, Phillipsburg, Saturday afternoon as the result of injuries sustained in the three-vehicle collision.

Katzman received fractures of both legs and the back when his tractor-trailer collided with another truck and a passenger car.

Police said the truck was driven by Dale A. Delabar of 318 Main St., Cementon.

New Jersey State Trooper Michael Blahut quoted Lehr as saying he came upon the traffic light in the fog and was unable to stop before entering the intersection.

Drive Nears Success

Monroe County's industrial development campaign edged a little bit closer to its $15,000 goal over the weekend. With donations now totaling $13,842, there is every reason to believe the drive can be put over the top in a day or so.

The effort was launched August 19 to raise funds sufficient to purchase building sites for two new industries.

A number of $100 contributions offered spontaneously at a Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce meeting put the campaign in motion. Its progress in the five weeks that followed has been steady (although slow, chiefly because it relied on voluntary donations for its momentum).

For the reason that little dependence was put on pressure solicitations, we suppose the drive can be considered a splendid success. Surely, it demonstrates the community's capability for raising money when the needs arises.

Above and beyond this concrete illustration, however, is something with greater significance, we feel. And that is that labor and management pitched in together to put the drive across. Both were represented on the committee which negotiated with the industries that plan to locate here. And both gave willingly of their funds to raise the necessary amount.

This augurs well for a community which is seeking to attract new industries. It cannot help but impress manufacturers as they investigate all angles before deciding whether to locate their plants in this area.

One other thing. The money that has been raised for the purchase of factory sites will be returned to Monroe County Industries Inc. by the two industries. It will then be put back in the industrial fund and used to buy other plant sites.

But the fund is only a small fraction of the amount needed to carry on an aggressive campaign for new industries. Further donations to the fund will help.

One other possibility that should have the support of people in all walks of life is the proposal that the Chamber's membership be stepped up to at least 1,000, with the additional fees going to build up the industrial fund.

Perhaps the Chamber could set up a special membership with a reduced fee for all those people who are especially interested in the industrial phase of the organization's program and are willing to contribute regularly to it.

We recommend the idea to the Chamber's board of directors for their consideration.

Opinions Of Other Editors

The Reds Are Shocked

The Commies, quite naturally, are making the most of American embarrassment over school integration troubles, including those caused by Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas. Tension sensibilities are shocked.

But there are some few items their propagandists won't mention:

1—American newspapers are reporting these troubles, fully and freely.

2—American press associations are freely carrying the bad news around the world.

3—The troubles, themselves, result from no new inequalities in citizenship, no new discriminations or persecutions. They are, rather, caused by determination to effect improvement along all these lines. The issue is forced by a Supreme Court ruling which is the law of the land.

By admitting our faults and troubles, by publicizing them for all to read, faith is demonstrated in a fundamental democratic principle—the ability and determination of free people to understand and right their own wrongs.

The peoples of the Communist countries have, of course, no such opportunities or democratic responsibilities. They do as they are told and persecution is the exclusive privilege of their Communist rulers.

How fully this privilege has been used, in just one instance, is told in the special report on Hungary to the United Nations—a story which has shocked the civilized world.

Robert S. Allen Reports...

Senator Stays Young

By Senator Theodore Francis Green, Chairman, Senate Foreign Relations Committee

Washington, Sept. 22—Webster's dictionary defines age as, "That part of the duration of a being or thing which is between its beginning and any given time."

It is only natural, therefore, that man should turn the light of research upon himself and, as a result of such study, in many places laws have been enacted setting at seven the number of years at which a child reaches the age of reason, at eighteen to twenty-one the number of years at which the minor becomes an adult, and at sixty-five the average for retirement.

The U.S. Constitution dictates minimum ages for senators, representatives and for the President. Life expectancy tables forecast the normal life span of men and women.

Until recently, too much attention has been devoted to the chronology of life and detailed histories of symptoms and conditions during youth, middle years and old age. Society has become generally conditioned to the belief that advanced age indicates the passing of the period of great usefulness, and reaching the period for retirement and for withdrawal from the world of action or even of thinking, into a kind of secluded pasture of leisure.

On the other hand, medical science has overcome or controlled so many of the diseases and afflictions of the human race that life expectancy has been increased almost beyond belief during the past few decades, so an adjustment must be made in the thinking of all people in relation to living under new standards.

Countless articles are written each year by psychiatrists and others who are interested in redirecting the mental attitude of those who are reaching retirement age or who have already been retired. Emphasis is now placed on the retention of interest in the familiar pursuits and on the addition of new interests for living useful lives, or even happy lives.

My experience as a businessman, lawyer and public official has brought about an ever expanding and changing sphere of interests and activities. The events which occupy my thoughts and my time each day leave no room for contemplation on advancing age or loss of usefulness.

The business of legislation and administration, the company of congenial and interesting acquaintances, of good books and works of art provide a very satisfactory combination of work and recreation.

Physicians and scientists generally tell us that both bodies deteriorate long before those which are kept in constant use. People who maintain pace with changes in the mode of living are less likely to lose their youthful spirit or their enthusiasm for life.

At one time, I was a very selective eater and disliked many foods. I later realized that eating had become for me a boring duty and resolved to change that. I gradually developed a taste for different dishes and now I eat anything, anywhere.

Please do not misunderstand me! I am not blind to the aging process or unaware of the battle waged by some against the loss of youth, the ravages of age or changing times.

But I have seen that such travails results in "vexation of spirit."

Young people think nothing of the passage of time; indeed, they wish the years away in their anxiety to reach anticipated goals. So long as one has a goal to strive for, a project to accomplish, hard climbing and mountain climbing, there need be no concern over age as such.

For many years after I entered actively into the arena of politics, I suffered defeat after defeat in my campaigns for Governor of Rhode Island. Twenty years elapsed from the date of my first attempt in 1912 until my successful election in 1932. Had I allowed myself any self-pity, I should never have prevailed, because I was not to become Governor until I was 55 years of age.

Notwithstanding some criticism concerning my increasing age, I ran for and was elected to the Senate in 1936.

Each subsequent campaign has brought forth some disparaging comments concerning my age, and requests that I retire to make room for younger men. I have won each election by increasing pluralities.

Frankly, I believe that I am a more competent and useful public servant than ever before.

The result is that my life and experiences are constant-and with some of the more difficult names it is virtually impossible.

George Sokolsky Says...

Tax Havens By Treaty

It is as much psychological as an economic law that money will flow to where it is safe and where it can earn an increase. Risks are taken, of course, and that is how modern industrialization has come to so much of the world.

But even when the greatest risks are taken, the entrepreneur assumes that the return will be so large that the risk is worthwhile. The gamblers who do not balance risk against profit but who take a chance on anything, sometimes make some money but most often go broke and complain about the system.

Whenever a man is heard to complain too violently about "the system," and about "special interests," a gambler will be found who burned his fingers taking too great a risk.

The principal problem that faces the current investor, whether he be a private individual buying securities or a corporation investing in the industry of another country or his own, is taxes. Taxes are a cost of operations. It is stupid to risk one's money anywhere if too large a share of the annual return will be consumed by taxes. The net profit can only be determined after taxes have been deducted from the amount received as a profit which is therefore taxed by the system.

It is because of this that tax havens have come into existence. When it is recognized that America's foreign trade faces government protected cartels throughout the world and tax havens everywhere, it is astonishing that the movement of American capital abroad has not amounted to a wild flight.

As it is, the situation has become extremely dangerous but is offset by disturbed political conditions in Europe which makes the United States a safe, if not too profitable a place for capital. The principal beneficiaries of the tax-haven operation have been Switzerland, Canada, Liberia, Panama and the Bahamas.

Now, Pakistan is moving into the game and has a treaty with the United States by which American firms doing business in Pakistan can get a tax credit which will be recognized by the United States

The Pennsylvania Story

Harrisburg Showdown

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — A bruising battle between Pennsylvania's two top elected fiscal officials and the Leader Administration is in the offing.

For the past several weeks Capitol Hill has been thumping ominously under the surface as the showdown nears.

In the final analysis it may well end up in a running fight until the end of the Leader Administration some sixteen months hence.

To State Auditor General Charles C. Smith, of Philadelphia, and State Treasurer Robert F. Kent, of Crawford County, both Republicans who assumed office this past summer following their election last fall, there is only one answer, summed up roughly in these words:

"We have a job to do as Pennsylvania's fiscal watchdogs and we're going to do it—to the full intent of the law period."

For the Democratic Leader Administration, if indications in this column are correct, it spells trouble—in capital letters.

A foretaste of things to come in this direction has already been handed to the unsuspecting. Checks and double-checks against vouchers and requisitions from the various departments under the Leader Administration have already been quietly made.

Payments have been delayed or suspended in some cases, pending proper completion or verification by the departments concerned of the vouchers or requisitions.

With the two new fiscal officers it is becoming a general policy of prove and substantiate—or else.

"We're just warming up now—we really haven't gotten up steam," commented a source close to both fiscal officers.

What fiscal bloodshed is in the offing? Here are a few indications:

As Pennsylvania's fiscal officers, the Auditor General and State Treasurer must audit requests as to what they come in from the various departments.

Under the new "streamlined accounting system" involving extensive use of complicated IBM machines as instituted by the Office of Administration cards are being sent through by departments with errors running as high as 50 percent.

But for the American investor the question has not so much been to find a foreign market as it has been to find a tax haven. Many of the foreign automobiles which are now beginning to flood the United States are owned by Americans.

The principal problem that faces the current investor, whether he be a private individual buying securities or a corporation investing in the industry of another country or his own, is taxes. Taxes are a cost of operations. It is stupid to risk one's money anywhere if too large a share of the annual return will be consumed by taxes. The net profit can only be determined after taxes have been deducted from the amount received as a profit which is therefore taxed by the system.

It is because of this that tax havens have come into existence. When it is recognized that America's foreign trade faces government protected cartels throughout the world and tax havens everywhere, it is astonishing that the movement of American capital abroad has not amounted to a wild flight.

As it is, the situation has become extremely dangerous but is offset by disturbed political conditions in Europe which makes the United States a safe, if not too profitable a place for capital. The principal beneficiaries of the tax-haven operation have been Switzerland, Canada, Liberia, Panama and the Bahamas.

Now, Pakistan is moving into the game and has a treaty with the United States by which American firms doing business in Pakistan can get a tax credit which will be recognized by the United States and with some of the more difficult names it is virtually impossible.

Result: night shifts with overtime pay—and additional cost to the taxpayer.

Illustration: an all too common occurrence is to receive an IBM punching with the decimal point in the wrong place—such as reading $890.00 instead of $89.00.

Check-backs and corrections must be made, resulting in delay for the overall operation—all at additional cost to the taxpayer. (There's no one else to foot the bill.)

Illustration: requisitions are being made for funds which oftentimes one or sometimes both fiscal officers maintain are open to question as to legality.

Some tests on this score have already been made—but the bloodletting is scheduled on others that are on the agenda for checks and double-checks before finally cleared, if cleared at all, by the Auditor General and State Treasurer.

Good Evening Ladies!

Why Doff Hat In Elevator?

By Ken Duvall

My recent polemic on the bad manners of ladies in public places has resulted in a score or more long, pointed and shellacked index fingernails being pointed at my sex, and their owners shouting,

"Look who's talking!" The strange thing about these ill-tempered communications is that, after reciting a long list of male offenses against good manners, each wound up with a bitter denunciation of men who leave their hats on in elevators when women are aboard.

I can't defend men who are guilty, as these ladies say, of pushing their big corporations around in department stores, stepping on ladies' feet without apologizing, letting mothers with babies in arms stand on buses while they sit, and stuff like that. But the hat in the elevator is something else.

Personally, I stopped removing my hat in elevators when women began getting belligerent about their equality with men. I could see no reason for doffing my hat to my equals, not even an elevator full of them. I admit that, as a gentleman of the old school, I was a bit uncomfortable at first and for some time, as a sort of habit reflex, I found my hand reaching for my hat. But I whipped it.

With the two new fiscal officers it is becoming a general policy of prove and substantiate—or else.

"We're just warming up now—we really haven't gotten up steam," commented a source close to both fiscal officers.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Nevin Nonnenmacher really got himself in for something when he brought one of his passion flowers to a dinner the other night. He had to repeat the story so many times that he probably didn't know whether he was lecturing for the Garden Club or giving a sermon.

A passion flower was named, not as you might think for passion, Hollywood version, but for the fancied resemblance of its component parts to the instruments of Christ's vine, like a morning glory, Dotta Nonnenmacher reports, but anything more unlike a morning glory, you never did see.

It's an improbable-looking flower and even after you touch its waxy petals, it doesn't seem real—more like those elaborate flower candles, except the most exacting candlemaker could never achieve such detail. It has a green confusion of things in the center, surrounded by a wreath of purple fringe which in turn is surrounded by these waxy petal-shaped things in shades of pink and green.

But as I heard the story from Nevin: The pistils (I guess) have nail-headed spikes on top of a jug-shaped thing, representing the nails and the vinegar; the stamens are spears tipped with the scars, and beneath is the post representing the one to which Christ was scourged.

The purple corona is the crown of thorns, which in legend had 72 thorns, the exact number of fringes. The petals and the sepals represent the disciples—not 12 but 10 as the number who followed Him to the cross. And underneath are three leaves, representing the three leaves, representing the tree.

I hope I remembered them all. Oh yes, underneath you can also see hair-like things representing the whips. Anyway it's a very elaborate allegory.

Reminds me of how the children liked to take apart a bleeding heart to make a pair of rabbits, a pair of carpet slippers, earrings, and a baby's bottle. Or put buds on the top of hollyhocks to make bellflowers. Or split the stems of dandelions to make curds. Or dip silver leaf in water to see it turn to silver.

There's a lot of things you can do with flowers besides admire them.

ESSTC Eleven Stuns Millersville, 27-0

'Poised' Warriors Use Pass To Humble Top Rated Foe

EAST STROUDSBURG State Teachers newly rebuilt eleven played with the poise of veterans Saturday in defeating highly touted Millersville, 27-0, on the Stroudsburg range yesterday.

Fenical posted a score of 469. Trailing was Allen Wimmer, Perkiomen Bowmen's Club, with 459.

Third place laurels went to Bill Dildine, of Stroudsburg, with a 450.

In the junior competition, Ronnie Gauger shot a 410 to take first place. Rodney Walker placed second with 400, while Allen Keough was third with 389.

Trophies were awarded to six victors.

41 Participate

Forty-one bow and arrow specialists took part in the event. Clubs represented were the Pocono Archery, Perkiomen, Weatherly Archers, Blue Ridge Bowmen, Hellertown Whitetails and Buckley Valley, N.J.

The Education Committee of Easton-Forks Area School Board is expected to make the proposal today at a meeting.

Yanks Clinch Tie For Flag

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (UPI)—The New York Yankees clinched at least a tie for the American League pennant today by whipping the Boston Red Sox, 5-1, and scoring four of their runs in a most un-Yankee fashion.

As it now stands, the White Sox would have to win all their remaining seven games and the Yanks lose all their remaining five for the race to finish in a tie. The Sox play Kansas City tomorrow night while the Yanks are idle. If the A's win, it's all over.

After coming from behind to tie it at 1-all in the fifth, the Yanks scored four runs in the sixth with—of all things—walks forcing in every one.

Tom Studivant and Bob Grim, who came on in the seventh, held the Sox to five hits until Boston put two on with one out in the ninth. Sal "The Barber" Maglie came in and threw one pitch to Dick Gernert, who promptly hit into a double play.

Ted Homers

One of the hits off Studivant was a home run by Ted Williams in the fourth—the first hit of the game, in fact. It enabled The Thumper to tie a record of hitting four home runs in four straight official times at bat.

For all practical purposes, Williams clinched the batting championship. He walked off the field with a .383 average.

Mantle, who went hitless in three tries, dropped to .365.

SCHOOLBOY DIES

OF GRID INJURIES

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 22 (UPI)—A forty Fort High School sophomore died today less than 30 hours after suffering head injury in a football game with Bloomsburg High School.

He was Richard Sunday, 15.

The youngster, a back, suffered a head injury in the second period of Friday night's game and complained of dizziness. He was removed from the game and examined on the field. His reflexes appeared normal but he later became ill and was taken to a hospital in Kingston and then was transferred to Scranton State Hospital early Saturday in critical condition.

Trailing 3-2 after five innings, Pierce was removed for a hit in the sixth. But the White Sox scored four runs in that inning to give the stylish southpaw his 20th victory on his third try. He has lost 11.

Pierce Notches 20th Victory

CLEVELAND, Sept. 22 (UPI)—Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox today became the American League's first 20-game winner of the season, getting help from Gerry Staley in a 9-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians. The White Sox clung to a chance of a tie for the pennant.

For all practical purposes, Williams clinched the batting championship. He walked off the field with a .383 average.

Mantle, who went hitless in three tries, dropped to .365.

Mrs. Kiffin Reads Diary To Club

MRS. Frances Kiffin of East Stroudsburg read selections from a Civil War diary carried by her grandfather during a meeting of the Pocono Mountains Writers Workshop Wednesday at the home of President John M. Price.

She also read letters which were written by her grandfather while serving with New York State troops in Virginia and Washington.

None Accepted

It was announced that none of the entries submitted in the Atlantic Monthly annual contest were accepted.

One of the entries, an historical book on the Revolutionary War, written by Oliver Wilson of East Stroudsburg, has been submitted to another publisher.

Fall Moves Into Picture Early Today

IF YOU'VE been postponing your vacation — or unpacking your winter clothes — today might be a good day to start.

In case you're wondering why, Autumn officially comes into the picture at 2:27 a.m. (EDT) today with no formal ceremonies planned to say good bye to another summer.

And if you're the kind of person who likes to have something to worry about well in advance, feast your eyes on this:

Winter is less than three months away — by the calendar, that is. Known officially as the Winter Solstice, it will debut at 9:49 p.m. (EST) on Saturday, Dec. 21.

You really couldn't call yesterday's weather Fall-like. But have patience, it'll come.
